This is the day that the Lord has made, let us rejoice and be glad in it.
Psalm 118:24

As you may be aware, my youngest child lives with depression. There are some days when getting out of bed before midmorning is an impossible task. Countless days of school have been missed. Opportunities to be a “regular” teenager have gone by the wayside. This is not a matter of will. If it were possible, this child would be fully engaged in life. However, it is hard to fight against the chemistry of one’s own brain.

So, in the midst of this reality, I’ve been learning some things. A resource, the Depression Project, has been helpful as it encourages the depressed person and their loved ones to focus on what you can do, not what you can’t do. Focusing on what you can’t do is, in our house, a recipe for continued negative spirals. Given that mindset, there are places for thankfulness and celebration.

“You were able to do a math assignment! Today, you were in school earlier than yesterday! You are able to be more active than you were at this time last year!”

This is not easy work. In fact, it is painful to see how difficult life is for one living with depression. Even so, this period in my life has provided me with insights into how God shows up. God shows up more frequently than we usually give God credit for doing. It’s in the really simple things, like getting out of bed on the first try, like having energy to do things, in the kindness of teachers, in the work of therapists, in kind words shared, in the prayers offered by others, in the medication researchers have created. In countless ways, God shows up.

And so, in this month when we pay more attention to thankfulness than we do otherwise, I am thankful to each day. May this season call each of us to a greater appreciation and recognition to when and where we see God’s fingerprints in our lives.

God’s peace to you,
Pastor Beth

Pat Hoehing has also "retired" from her time of heading up the altar group and making sure that the countless moving parts that help our worship flow smoothly get done! Corrie Schuppenies is stepping away from a term on church council. Thank you all for sharing yourselves and your time with us through these positions!

Outreach

Sylvania Area Family Services

Want to help a family in need? We are participating in the SAFS holiday food basket program this year. We're aiming to collect a total of $425 to help 4 families in our area. Families are given $25 per person in Kroger gift cards so that they can shop for their own food, so we'll be helping 17 people in our area. If you'd like to provide a $25 gift card or a monetary donation in a different amount, please use the envelopes labeled SAFS on the usher table in the narthex or mail your gift to the church. Our goal is to gather this money by November 14th. If we exceed our goal, those monies will be applied toward the Christmas food gift cards we'll be sharing with the same families. During November, we will also have a board available with individuals and their Christmas gift card wishes.
